PCS Front Line issue 3

Welcome to Frontline, the journal for PCS members in the Home Office group. This edition has been compiled by the newly elected group editorial board and includes several articles that I'm sure every member of the group will find to be of interest.

In this issue

PCS responds to protect members following far-right targeting Home Office locations

Group secretary Mike Jones reflects on the recent spate of far-right riots.

The Home Office repeatedly fails in its disability obligations

New editorial board member Paddy Silke discusses the department's reluctance to implement reasonable adjustments.

Strike breaking legislation to be repealed following PCS campaign

Group secretary Mike Jones on scrapping the Strikes (Minimum Service Levels) Act 2023.

What the union did for me and my pension

New editorial board member Louise Greenall writes about her personal experience at an online webinar.
